Australian Market Overview (AWI)

"Demand for wool is being hit by globally weaker consumer spending.

This is most felt in the Chinese domestic market as that country buys approximately 80% of Australia's wool and is thought to consume at least half of that import domestically. Of course, the other half relies on exports to nations that are struggling with retail sales presently until the Northern hemisphere winter sales provide volume sales. China's economy is deeply integrated with the world economy. The past decade has seen mainly the exports from China lead global growth, so a natural reliance from most industry stems from that nation. Wool is no exception.

South African Market

The average Non-RWS price in Jun'23 decreased by 2.54% compared to May'23 while the price is 0.89% higher compared to a year ago. Two auctions took place in Jun'23 with the price ending on R165.58/kg at the last auction. The average RWS price traded lower on R178.98/kg. Lower demand on the Australian auctions were reported which resulted in lower international prices. Lower demand in general, which is now mostly driven by lower global economic growth, can put pressure on prices over the coming month.
